Dove Bradshaw's work show the change that is constantly around if we take the time to look. People, relationships forms, our minds and bodies are constantly in flux. The work shows all these things in a simple form, having a drip of water from a suspended hand-blown funnel land on a 100 pound mound of salt, causing it to crystallize into an ever-changing patina. On the gallery floor there are several mounds of salt in various colors from different parts of the world.
